Don't be fooled! Current lowering of ration point values for a few canned vegetables and fruits does not mean the food picture is any more rosy. It is poor business to carry over one season's pack of canned fruits or vegetables into a succeeding season. Critical storage space will be needed for the oncoming crop. There is a certain slow deterioration in quality — not necessarily food value — that takes place in many if not most canned goods. One season's canned goods should be utilized before the next season's crop comes on.

The reason for lowering values on certain things and not others is that slightly larger supplies of some kinds are on hand. Changes of point values will shift buying to those articles which are in larger supply.

This situation should not change your plans for home food production one bit. Plant the usual run of small vegetables for your current use. Plant string beans, lima beans, sweet corn, and, of course, tomatoes for regular summer consumption. Then if you have space to grow and the time for safe preservation of green beans, lima beans, and sweet corn, plant extra rows for that purpose. Because tomatoes can be safely canned without pressure, everybody should grow tomatoes for canning.

How to can? Non-acid vegetables must be pressure cooked, of course, as a safeguard against fatal botulinus poison. Have your pressure cooker tested. Take it to your local gas company office or to one of several firms which have repair parts. If you haven't a pressure cooker and can not buy one, plan to use one of the eleven community canneries in high schools of the city and county. They are fully equipped and are under public health department supervision and have a licensed operator in charge. A short preliminary instruction period is necessary before canning. You clean and pack the vegetables or fruits or meats in the can and the licensed operator processes them for you. You can use either your own home grown or purchased vegetables. Processing cost is from 7 to 9 cents, including the can, for most fruits or vegetables, more for meats.

Planting Season
"I can't grow tomatoes on my soil." "I can't grow carrots in my soil." "All my squash rot off at the ground and my cucumbers do the same. Something is wrong with my soil." "My beans all come up with the seeds chewed and red. There is something wrong with my soil." "Can't make things grow from seed in my soil." Poor soil! It gets blamed for everything!

The truth is, most soils of Los Angeles County are suitable for a good garden. Failure is usually because of the way you handle them, or when you plant, or how you plant, or how you irrigate, or fertilize, or control the "bugs." Some failures, of course, are due to nematode, particularly in light soils, and to soil-borne diseases, but they are not the rule.

March, April, and frequently early May plantings of tomatoes will become yellow and spotted, die back from the top when about two months old, or fail to set blossoms, but don't blame the soil. You planted too early while thrrips are migrating and carrying virus diseases from weeds to your tomatoes, or you planted the wrong variety and the nights were too cold for blossoms to set.

Plants that rot off at the ground when a few inches high or partly grown are usually the victims of fungus attack — you kept the ground wet around the base of the plant by wrong irrigation or by sprinkling. If the seeds "won't germinate," well they germinated all right but maybe a fungus destroyed them before they got above the ground, or maybe the birds dug 'em up! Seed treatment would have prevented the fungus trouble, and how about a screen cover for birds? Or maybe you kept them too wet or not wet enough. Don't blame the soil.

If the two halves of the bean seed which push out of the ground are reddish around the margin and half rotten, it's usually soil temperature (too cold) or deep planting, and not the "soil" as such. Don't blame the soil for all your failures. Get a Victory Garden guide and the University of California circular RETIRED . . . Cornelius J. (Paddy) Ryan, a chief pharmacist's mate, recently retired following 30 years Naval service. With his wife, Helene, he lives at 1404 W. 218th St. and is employed in the receiving department at National Supply Company. Mrs. Ryan, a Torrance resident for the past four years, is the proud owner of a honor volunteer pin which represents more than 500 hours volunteer service at Torrance War Price and Rationing Board.

GOOD TOOLS — GOOD GARDEN!

Insect Control
Many insecticides commonly are hard or impossible to get. You may have to go back to the old soap treatment for aphid control. We'll give you the formula and describe it in detail next week. You may have to use a high pressure spray from the hose and simply wash the aphids off, using your hand to work them loose. For chewing insects you may have to help out the manufacturer who can't get labor material to make small packages by getting together with all the folks in your neighborhood who want cryolite and sulphur mixed and buy 50 pounds and divide it. Incidentally, lack of labor and packaging is one of the reasons for shortages in Victory Garden supply houses.

This verse from Ezekiel will be the Golden Rule of the Study Lesson—Sermon on "Everlasting Punishment" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston: "Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?" Luke's Gospel relates that "men brought in a bed a man . . . taken with a palsy; and . . . let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus. And when he saw the faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee. And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, . . . Who can forgive sins, but God alone? . . . Jesus . . . said unto them, . . . Whether is easier, to say, 'Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house, and immediately he rose up before them. . . and departed to his own house, glorifying God."

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures": "The great fact that God lovingly governs all, never punishing aught but sin, is your standpoint from which to advance and destroy the human fear of sickness."

DU PONT

self-cleaning

stays white!

1 Paint protection pays. Because building repair materials are so hard to get now, it's all the more important to protect surfaces with the best of paints. Du Pont House Paint forms a beautiful, durable film—and effectively guards against rot, rust, and decay.

2 Starts white, stays white. Du Pont House Paint is made with that whitest of white pigments—titanium dioxide. That's why it will make your house glisten whiter than you've ever thought possible! Yes, and it will stay that way, too. Because . . .

3 It's self-cleaning. All paints collect dirt on exposure. But, with Du Pont House Paint, "self-cleaning" starts after a few months of normal weather conditions. A fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash this away, carrying the dirt with it—leaving the newly exposed surface clean and white again! (Unusually climatic or dirt-collecting conditions in extremely sooty industrial communities may, of course, delay this process.) Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Despite this remarkable quality of Du Pont House Paint, it costs no more than other good paints.

Telephone equipment is fighting on every front

Wherever America's Army, Navy and Air Forces are fighting, there is telephone equipment aplenty. For this is a global war of fast movement—and victory demands fast communications.

Telephone equipment is being made here at home for fighting use overseas; in factories that in peacetime supply America's civilian telephone needs.

That is why there is now a shortage—and why you may have been asked to wait your turn for home telephone service.
